Work experience

Evision (Wolters Kluwer) - Implementation Consultant – 03/2020 – Present

- First a year as a C# trainee from Young Capital. After that as internal employer.
- Understanding and analyzing functional requirements.
- Creating features and customer solutions by configuring and/or programming according to the functional and technical design. The main part of the configuring and programming is in XML. Automatic tests are in C#. Some part of the functional updates are in React (for example creating a Risk Matrix or creating buttons).
- Contributes to the analysis of incidents and structural defects/bugs in the solution.
- Testing implemented features.

Young Capital Next – C# Trainee – 08/2019 – 03/2021

- The C# Traineeship starts with an eight week bootcamp where the trainee will be trained to become a certified Junior .NET C# developer. After the bootcamp, the trainee continues his further career at one of the clients, which was for me Evision (Wolters Kluwer).

ABN AMRO – IT Business Analyst – 05/2017– 08/2019

- I started as a IT Business Analyst Trainee from Young Colfield. After that I became internal employer.
- I worked for Accounting, Investment (Web) and Mobile Banking (App) scrum teams.
- Discussing functional requirements with stakeholders.
- Discussing design with stakeholders and Designer.
- Creating user stories for new functionalities. And discussing user stories with development team.
- Discussing and presenting legal impacts for specific new features with legal representatives.
- Rollout marketing plan together with marketing department for specific new features which have a huge impact on the client.
- Collaborating with call center for specific features where huge client calls are expected.
- Collaborating between web and mobile IT scrum teams for new functionalities.
- Documenting new functionalities and other updates in IT processes.
- I have also visited part of our Investments IT Team in Hyderabad (India) as a work trip.

Young Colfield – IT Business Analyst Traineeship – 05/2017– 05/2018
